AGAINST A BACKDROP OF Islamophobia and anti-migrant rhetoric in France (and emboldened by Trump's win) the Front National's Marine Le Pen is in a strong position in advance of the first round of the presidential elections on 23 April.

The prospect of a party with its roots in fascist Vichy France and a former leader convicted of holocaust denial taking national power is a horrifying one, especially for Muslims and minorities. (The final round will be on 7 May.)

After the first round takes place, we are holding a demonstration outside the French Embassy in London (Monday 24 April, 6pm).

This will be followed a few days later with a rally at Conway Hall, to discuss Le Pen, the far right – and how we can resist here in Britain.

Come and join us!
